

COX WOULD HAVE REAL FARMER IN HIS CABINET

Elected President, He Will Appoint "Dirt" Farmer Secretary of Agriculture, Democratic Nominee Promises

HARDING CONFERS WITH WILL HAYS

Also Talks Over Campaign Plans With Pre-Convention Manager—Townpeople Greet Republican Leaders in Church

Dayton, Ohio, July 11. — A real-dirt farmer will be the next secretary of agriculture if the Democratic party is successful at the November election, according to a statement made today by Governor Cox, the Democratic presidential nominee. His promise to appoint a real farmer as head of the nation's farming activities, providing he is elected, was made to a delegation of the Governor's neighbor farmers who called at his home at Trail's End.

He said: "If elected president, I will select a dirt-farmer as secretary of agriculture, a man who has tilled the soil himself and made a successful business of farming, in the doing of which he has demonstrated his efficiency as a business man."

Hears of Frisco Victory.

Former Congressman P. T. Ansberry of Washington arrived this morning from San Francisco and gave the Presidential nominee first-hand details of the convention activities which resulted in his selection to lead the party. Mr. Ansberry told the governor that the credit for his victory goes to E. H. Moore of Youngstown, his pre-convention manager.

Mr. Ansberry told newspaper correspondents that the contest at San Francisco was between McAdoo, Palmer and Cox, and not between the administration and Cox. No announcement as to the discussion of campaign plans was made.

In the afternoon, the governor and Mrs. Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Ansberry motored to the nominee's boyhood home at Jacksonburg.

The governor will go to Columbus tomorrow to resume work at the executive office. A reception is planned for him at the capitol. In the afternoon, Franklin D. Roosevelt, his running mate, will stop over for a few hours on his return from San Francisco for a conference.

Harding Discusses Plans With Hays and Daugherty

Marion, Ohio, July 11. — Senator Harding, the Republican choice for the Presidency, spent a busy day today, attending church services in the morning with Mrs. Harding and later discussing campaign plans at length with National Chairman Will H. Hays and Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus, Ohio, the senator's close personal friend and member of the executive committee of the Republican National committee in charge of the campaign. Mr. Hays had left for New York, where he plans to spend the week conferring with Republican leaders.

This was the first time Mr. Hays had seen the Republican nominee since the latter's return home from Washington, and they took advantage of every opportunity to discuss general matters surrounding the campaign. It was also understood the senator was over both with the national chairman and Mr. Daugherty portions of his speech of acceptance now under preparation for the purpose of receiving any suggestions they might offer.

Hays Awaits Senator's Arrival.

Mr. Hays arrived in Marion at an early hour and reached the Harding home before the senator had arisen for the day. While breakfast was being prepared, Mr. Hays visited the administration building next door to the Harding home, where he dictated to his secretary personal mail until called by the senator.

Joined by Mr. Hays, Senator and Mrs. Harding attended services at the Trinity Baptist church, where the senator's father, Dr. George T. Harding, was also a worshipper. The Harding party reached the church shortly before the services opened and occupied a pew immediately in front of the pulpit.

Rev. T. H. McAfee, pastor of the church, who was "discovered" by the senator while attending church some years ago at Portsmouth, Ohio, spoke on the subject, "The Kingdom," his text being taken from Luke 9:27. "But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here which shall not taste of death until they see the Kingdom of God." Neither in his prayer nor his sermon, however, was any reference made by the clergyman to his distinguished worshipper.

With the close of the services, a reception lasting nearly 30 minutes, during which members of the congregation filed past the pulpit and shook hands with Senator and Mrs. Harding, as well as Mr. Hays, followed. Rev. McAfee stood beside the senator and introduced the worshippers, in many instances particularly with the older members, as the senator would recognize them and exchange some recollection of the past as he shook their hands.

THIRD PARTY FACTIONS PLAN SINGLE TICKET

Hope to Agree on Common Platform and Presidential Candidate

BIG PARTIES ASSAILED

Both Republicans and Democrats Come In For Criticism; Convention Cheers Russian Soviets

Chicago, July 11. — Amalgamation of the committees of 48 and Labor party of the United States with a common platform and common Presidential ticket, will be recommended to the two conventions tomorrow, it was decided tonight by their conference committee.

After several hours' discussion, the conferees adopted three resolutions recommending combination of the two groups, and then took up discussion of a name for the new party.

The committee of 48 and the single tax conventions were in recess over Sunday, but attended the Labor convention in force.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, a keynote speaker, brought the convention to the highest enthusiasm with a plea "that the day would come when the working people of the United States would get together and do a job such as the workers of Russia have done."

Big Demonstration by Convention.

The biggest demonstration of the day was accorded this reference. Delegates stamped and whistled and one called for "Three Cheers for Soviet Russia." They were given.

Fitzpatrick declared there was nothing to prevent the "hand and brain workers taking the government out of the hands of not Americans but international financial pirates," and advised all the minority groups to unite on one ticket.

In opening the convention, Max Hayes, chairman of the Labor party's national committee, declared that "every political group assembled in this city agrees in substance to the platform," which the Labor party had formulated last November.

The November Labor party platform declared for nationalization of all essential industries, abolition of the United States senate and of injunction powers of judges in labor disputes, declared for the Plumb plan, high income taxes, world-wide disarmament, a national budget, and limitation of the United States supreme court's power to veto legislation.

The convention responded to the suggestion of Fitzpatrick and Hayes by naming a committee of 12 to confer with a similar group from the committee of 48 in an effort to develop a common ground on which all could meet. As a name for the new party, "Farmer-Labor" was suggested. Its consideration, however, was postponed.

The thunder of foot stamping and cheering punctuated the Fitzpatrick address. His speech lost all repression in its references to Russia and Ireland and to the Republican and Democratic parties.

Labor Must Break Away.

"For years and years, labor has followed the old routine of appealing to existing political parties," Fitzpatrick said. "We have gone to them with our program, making no difference whether the Democratic or Republican party was in power, and have come away with our promises only to see those promises broken and shattered."

"So now we are through. We have gotten our own people together. We have tried to say, if words have meaning, that this program of ours was big and broad enough for every man and woman who does useful work with hand or brain to stand upon, though the big business has prevented our statement in an attempt to make it wholly a proposition for organized labor. There are other groups here in Chicago, now, and I can tell you we are all agreed: we have all got the same program. There isn't anything sufficient to prevent the hand and brain workers of the United States from taking the government out of the hands of — not Americans but international financial pirates — and do it now."

Fitzpatrick hailed for the tumult to subside as he made the point.

"The Republican party met here last month," he resumed. "They drew up their platform and nominated their standard bearers. Where can you find a free man or a free woman in this country who can stand for these candidates or that platform? It is a denial of every right that free men have stood for."

Democrats Also Assailed.

Again the audience broke up the speech.

"Then you go to San Francisco," he continued, "and you see the Democratic party. Where is there a free man or free woman who will stand for or accept the promises of the Democratic party after the way its representatives have betrayed our people during the past four years?"

They nominated a standard bearer with an attractive personality, who can appeal to people, and by that the

Allies Offer to Aid Poles to Resist Reds

(By the Associated Press)

Spa, Belgium, July 11. — If the Poles consent to retire within the natural frontiers of Poland, the Allies will give them all possible assistance in the event of their being attacked by the Bolsheviks.

This announcement was made here today.

The Allies have sent a proposal to the Russian Soviet government for an armistice with Poland on condition that the Poles retire within their natural Polish frontier. It is set forth that the armistice will be followed by a conference of representatives of all the countries on the Russian border and that if the Bolsheviks attack the Poles within these frontiers the Allies will come to the aid of Poland.

Democratic party hopes to stay on the job of serving the financial pirates who have always dominated the Republican party.

Fitzpatrick here criticized Governor Cox's handling of events in the steel strike last fall.

"What's our duty, as the representatives of the greed of gold?" he continued. "Our duty is to proceed immediately, untidily, to take over the reins of the government of the United States."

"They want us to look abroad. They tell us about Russia. There was a monarchy over there under which the Russians lived for 700 years, and one day they threw it into the garbage can. Do they want the United States to tell them how to govern? We would be poor instructors. They might go to Ireland for help."

New Government in Russia.

"Russia has created a new government, taking care of the rights of people in the way Russians want it done. Oh, that the day would come when the working people of the United States would get together and do a job such as the workers of Russia have done!"

Sixty trades union groups and other organizations are represented in the labor convention. Permanent organization was completed tonight with the election of John H. Walker, miner leader and former president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, as chairman. Walker defeated James Duncanson, who was chosen vice chairman.

In his speech of acceptance, Walker assailed the Democratic and the Republican conventions. He declared the delegates at both represented the "steel trust and profiteering merchants," and that Boies Penrose, "special representative of the steel trust," picked the Republican nominees. He said Attorney General Palmer chose the Democratic ticket.

Assailing Palmer's action in the bituminous coal strike, Walker said that the judiciary, by use of injunctions, "has more power than the Kaiser ever had." He added that in all of Palmer's campaigns against profiteers he had "found nobody profiteering except the workmen who was trying to earn a living for his family."

ALLIES REFUSE TO MODIFY THE TREATY

Coal Terms Must Remain, Germans Are Told; Reparations Plan Presented Conference

(By The Associated Press)

Spa, Belgium, July 11. — After some hesitation, due to the coal question, the German delegates today produced their plan showing how Germany would deal with reparations, but they specified that the decision reached regarding coal would modify their proposal.

The Allied experts had declared they did not consider that even the figures submitted by the Germans would justify modification of the protocol signed July 9, but admitted the justice of the German experts' plea on the point, first, relieving Germany of the obligations of reporting to the reparations committee regarding distribution of coal within Germany and, second, approving the protocol to increase the output by improving the food and welfare of the miners and suggesting that the German and Allied governments discuss means to this end.

Dr. Simons remarked that coal was the central point of the whole economic life of Germany. "The solution given to the coal question by the experts," he said, "will react upon the different plans of reparations prepared by the German delegates, which had understood that an agreement which would take into account the economic conditions judged essential to Germany would be arrived at. The plans cannot be handed over this evening, as was expected."

Premier Millerand expressed surprise that the communication of the German plan as announced yesterday should be brought into question and subordinated to the experts' solution of the coal question.

Dr. Simons rejoined that the German delegates had prepared plans that must be studied as a whole to be understood.

"The question of coal is a question of life or death to the Germans," said Dr. Simons, "and remains the basis for all other plans."

Premier Millerand replied that there could be no question of modifying the treaty of Versailles on that subject, and that it must be accepted.

URGES U. S. TO GO SLOW WITH MEXICAN ACTION

Ex-Ambassador Fletcher Warns Against Premature Recognition

COUNTRY UNSETTLED

America Should First Let New Regime Demonstrate Its Ability to Maintain Order

Gothenburg, Pa., July 11. — Warning against premature recognition of the new Mexican government was given the administration today by Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Mexico.

In a letter to Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state, he urged that in no case should the recognition of the de la Huerta regime be other than that of a defacto government with the understanding that even this would be withdrawn should subsequent events prove that it was prematurely extended.

Mr. Fletcher's letter resulted from negotiations now in progress between the state department and Dr. Iglesias Calderon, Mexican high commissioner to the United States, regarding recognition of the new government at Mexico City.

Warns Against Formal Recognition.

Dr. Calderon has assured the American government of the desire of the new regime to live up to the obligations of a government, but Mr. Fletcher in his letter suggested that before any recognition be made with the informal agreement be made with the Mexican authorities that American citizens would not be deprived of their property rights without compensation and that such property as they were deprived of during the Carranza regime without compensation would be returned to them.

Mr. Fletcher was ambassador to Mexico during the Carranza administration but resigned several months ago because of a disagreement with the American government's policy toward Mexico. His letter to Secretary Colby follows:

"In my capacity as a private citizen interested in good relations between the United States and Mexico, may I suggest for such consideration as they may deserve the following, regarding the recognition of the new government of Mexico:

"Without reverting to past difficulties and with a view to avoiding a repetition of them, I would respectfully suggest:

"First, that the United States should not recognize the new government of Mexico until it is reasonably clear that said government is not only willing but able to regard the fundamental duties of a government, that is, to maintain law and order and to afford adequate protection to the lives and interests of foreigners in Mexico."

Defacto Recognition Only.

"Second, that the new regime should be recognized, if at all, merely as a defacto government and it should be informed that such recognition was provisional and would be withdrawn if it should subsequently prove to have been prematurely extended.

"Third, that before extending such defacto recognition we should take steps to secure an informal agreement (to be later made formal if desired) covering the following pending matters:

"(a) That the constitution of 1917 and the law passed in pursuance thereof shall not be given retroactive effect as to property lawfully acquired prior to its promulgation and that American citizens shall not be deprived of their lawfully-acquired rights without compensation.

"(b) Return to American citizens and corporations of such property (excluding taxes) as they were deprived of during the Carranza regime without compensation by either national or state governments of Mexico."

Would Establish Claims Commission.

"(c) Immediate constitution of a mixed Mexican-American claims commission to adjust all claims of American citizens against the government of Mexico and of Mexican citizens against the government of the United States."

"(d) Appointment of commissioners to settle definitely the Canal zone and all other boundary questions, including the defection, canalization and protection of the waters of the Colorado river for the irrigation of the Imperial valley in Mexico and in the United States. I make no mention of financial or economic matters, believing they should form the subject matter of negotiations subsequent to recognition."

"We should make it clear that these conditions are attached to our recognition merely because our unfortunate experiences with the Carranza government make them appear necessary to avoid future trouble, and above all that we are not asking for our nationals a privileged position, but simply justice."

MAN KILLED SHOOTING NIAGARA IN A BARREL

Charles G. Stephens of Bristol, England, Goes Over Horseshoe Falls in Wooden Cask Despite Warning He Would Fail

HIS BODY NOT YET RECOVERED

It Strikes Jagged Rocks Underneath Cataract—Stephens Third to Make Venture, Others Still Living

Niagara Falls, July 11. — Charles G. Stephens of Bristol, England, was killed today when he went over the Horseshoe falls in a barrel. The cask in which he made the trip, though built of stout Russian oak staves and bound with steel hoops, smashed like an egg-shell on the jagged rocks at the base of the cataract. Pieces of the barrel were picked up near the bank on the Canadian side, but Stephens' body has not been recovered. Rivermen say that it may not come to the surface for a week or ten days.

Stephens, who boasted the title of "daredevil," was 53 years old and has a wife and 11 children in Bristol, where he was a barber. He served three years in France with the British army. He had planned to make a lecture tour of England if his trip was successful.

Stephens Laughs at Warnings.

Bobby Leach, who went over the Horseshoe falls in 1911, told Stephens before he started that his trip would be a failure. Leach predicted that the barrel would not withstand the drop of 158 feet, but Stephens refused to be dissuaded from the venture. Leach was among the spectators who watched the start of Stephens' fatal trip.

Few knew that Stephens was to make the trip today and when the barrel was towed out into the river from the Canadian side there were only a dozen on hand to watch him.

It was 5:10 o'clock this morning when Stephens was cast adrift. Early sightseers on Goat Island saw the barrel bobbing up and down in the tumbling reaches of the upper rapids, but none knew that it carried a man ready to defy the cataract.

Members of Stephens' party followed the cask downstream in automobiles. In one of the cars, a moving picture operator filmed the progress of the barrel.

As the barrel drew near the brink of the falls, it seemed to stand on end, hesitate a second or two, and then slid gracefully over the slope, head foremost, and at a slight angle. Its gleaming black and white stripes could be seen until it had fallen about half way down the face of the cataract. Then it was lost to view in the misty spray.

Men stationed below the falls on the Canadian shore watched the barrel as it fell prepared to catch it if it floated into the eddy above the Canadian Maid of the Mist landing. It was there that the barrels in which Leach and Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor, who made the Falls trip in former years, had been recovered.

No Trace of Barrel

A quarter of an hour passed, then a half hour, and an hour. Field glasses trained on the boiling waters at the base of the cataract revealed no sign of the cask. When the hour had passed, the old rivermen in the little group of watchers began to shake their heads dubiously. They remembered that Mrs. Taylor had made the trip in 43 minutes and that Bobby Leach was on his way to the top of the bank 39 minutes after his barrel had been set adrift above the falls.

As the moments of suspense dragged along, those who had towed Stephens out into the river above the falls joined the watchers below. Some suggested that the barrel had become imprisoned in the backwash of the falls and would be cast out later into the river.

TWO AMERICANS KILLED BY UKRAINIAN BANDITS

Relief Workers From New York Reported to Be Victims; Were Soon to Return

Washington, July 11. — Dr. Israel Friedlander, professor of biblical literature at the Jewish theological seminary in New York, and Bernard Cantor, also of New York, have been identified as the men killed on July 7 near Yermoline, in the Ukraine, by three men wearing Bolshevik uniforms, according to information received today at the Warsaw headquarters of the American joint distribution committee.

Dr. Friedlander and Dr. Cantor had distributed more than one million marks in the prosecution of their relief work and were preparing to leave the region in the Ukraine near which General Budyonny was operating with his Bolshevik cavalry. According to the story related by the chauffeur who was driving the car in which they were traveling, the armed bandits stopped the automobile and demanded money. The chauffeur, who spoke Russian, explained to the bandits that both the men he was driving, and who wore the khaki uniforms of the distribution committee, were Americans.

The bandits persisted in their search, however, and while they were going over the car the chauffeur escaped. As he ran, he heard a shot, he said, and saw one of the Americans fall.

The chauffeur gave his account of the happening at Lemberg, and later, according to the committee's information, other travelers arriving at Lemberg reported having seen the bodies of two Americans and the ruins of the barge automobile.

The American legation here and the joint distribution committee will make a thorough investigation of the affair and try to learn what disposition was made of the bodies of the two men. Both of the Americans had been connected for the past six months with the Jewish relief work in Poland and had planned to return home in the near future.

REAR ADMIRAL KNAPP HOME

New York, July 11. — Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp, commander of American naval forces in European waters, succeeding Admiral William S. Sims, arrived here today. During the story related by the chauffeur who was driving the car in which they were traveling, the armed bandits stopped the automobile and demanded money.

SHOEMEN SHOW SPEED

GRABBING RUN AFTER RUN AND GIVING NO QUARTER TO WEIDMAN'S CUBS.

Largest Crowd Ever on Grounds Witnessed Unequal Encounter With Locals Playing Loosely. Due in Part to Change in Line-Up at Last Moment — Weidman Still Confident of Success.

It is truly unfortunate and none regret it more than the manager and players that the poorest exhibition of the national game given by Weidman's Cubs should have been before what undoubtedly was the largest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game in this city, the game on Saturday with the E.-J. A. A. team, the second of the series. It is unfortunate also that it was the second of the series for a purse of $1,000, which gives the E.-J. aggregation two victories and a clean slate. It cannot, however, be taken as a sure indication of superiority, for one often reads of games in the major leagues with a similar score, followed by an almost reversal of form on the following day. It was, however, a rather bitter dose for the Oneonta fans who had turned out en masse but who found little use for their voices and tin horns.

While E.-J. has a strong team and with that sage old veteran, who has forgotten more baseball than many erstwhile players will ever know, Fischer, directing so well balanced a team and with Donohue, also a big league calibre twirler, it is a formidable foe for most any sort of aggregation, yet it is no disparagement of the Fischer clan to state that the loosely and indifferently played game of the locals resulted quite largely from the fact that new players were put in the game without any practice with their associates. Nine players came short of making an effective ball team. They entered the game with no knowledge of each other and the outcome need create no surprise. Manager Weidman, however, still voices confidence that his team will pull together and even up the series in the next two games played.

The visitors hit both Kibbee and Davis hard, the latter being unable to stem the terrific slugging of the visitors in the first after striking out the first two batters for E.-J. Kibbee gave the next two batters bases on balls — Murphy unintentionally and old man Fischer purposely. Then Leo Hanley hit safely and Murphy scored. Fischer was caught when he tried to make third on Loftus Hanley's single. In the next two innings E.-J. was held well, but in the next they hammered Kibbee's offerings hard and Davis was substituted.

In the eighth the visitors found Davis for four hits, including a double and a homer. Murphy, with one on took one glance at the new sign that Herrieff's Clothes shop has placed on the center field fence, offering a $5 straw hat to any batsman driving the ball against or over the sign, and then lifted one of Davis' offerings cleanly over the fence. The shoemen's greed apparently were not satiated even then, having been inoculated, doubtless, with the idea of doing things on a wholesale scale, they grabbed a couple more in the ninth.

The Cubs started off amazingly well — for a brief period. Duvall hit a scorching two bunter and Baird laid down a neat hit, sacrificing him to third. Marone fanned. After Tryon drew a pass and stole second Fred Weeks picked out a long wagon tongue and the fans had hopes. They were shattered, however, when he drove a liner at snort, which Hanley handled handsomely.

Thereafter the locals had scarcely a look-in until the ninth when many had left the grounds. After Tryon had been retired Fred Weeks sent one to left field fence, upon which he reached second. Duvall fanned, but Sullivan, who had replaced Jones at third, sent a safety to right and B. Weeks followed with one to center, scoring Weeks and Sullivan. Davis flew out to left ending the gruesome tale.

On Tuesday the fast Overall team from Mohawk will be here for a game. On Wednesday the Imperials and on Saturday the Great Bend team.

RECORDED IN WEEK

Midyear Adjustments Accomplished Without Strain to Market; Demand Loan Rates Ease

New York, July 11. — Pronounced improvement was shown by the financial market this week on an almost steady rise of activity as well as prices. Midyear readjustments were accomplished without strain, demand loan rates easing visibly as heavy interest and dividend payments found new channels of investment.

Most important of these were the Swiss government loan of $25,000,000 at eight per cent, and the Armour company note issue of $50,000,000 placed on a 7 1/2 per cent return, both underwritings being oversubscribed in short order.

Wall street seemed to pay little attention to the outcome of the Democratic National convention, evincing far more interest in the credit situation and attendant industrial and commercial developments than in political conditions and platforms.

Reactionary tendencies in general lines of business were less marked than in the preceding weeks, despite a further letdown of production in such industries as textiles and leather. Bankers were inclined to believe that June's business reverses, the heaviest in 18 months, would diminish in the current period.

Crop prospects continued extremely promising, exceeding by a liberal margin the average of the past five years, and commission houses with important agricultural connections may be expected to emphasize this favorable aspect in the forecasts of the market's immediate future.

It is too early, in the opinion of students of international conditions, to gauge the financial effect of Germany's acceptance of the Allied disarmament terms. There are broad intimations, however, that relief from this tension may pave the way to comprehensive plans for the refunding of foreign credits under guidance of American bankers.

DROP FIGHT AGAINST BABLER

Further Agitation Against Man Who Helped Distribute London Money Is Declared to Be "Unnecessary and Unwise."

St. Louis, July 11. — The fight for the removal of Jacob L. Babler as Republican National committeeman from Missouri has been dropped, it was announced at a meeting here of a committee of Republicans appointed at a recent mass meeting at Sedalia to demand Babler's resignation.

Antagonism against Babler resulted from the disclosure that he had participated in the distribution of $38,000 of Lowden presidential campaign funds in the state.

The committee, headed by Davis Proctor of Kansas City, in a formal statement, declared "further agitation of this matter is both unnecessary and unwise."

"We are satisfied," the statement continued, "that the National committee fully understands the situation in Missouri and that under its rules and practices and present responsibilities it cannot itself take any action in connection with Babler."

The committee suggested that the "strongest and most representative state committee possible" be chosen at the August primary to guarantee that the party will not be "disgraced by money."

Resolutions calling for concerted action by the Republicans in Missouri, to repudiate Babler for his connection with the campaign funds, were adopted at a mass meeting of Republicans from throughout the state, held here.

This is a question asked in Midnight Gambols, the sensational dramatic novelty. Dainty Marie Doro plays the part of a young woman with a dual nature.

Says Mrs. Overman, So Other Suffering Women May Learn How to Get Well.

Chicago, Ill.—I suffered for four years with pains in my sides, hips and legs and a terrible headache. I could not do any work at all. I was treated by many physicians, but they did not help me. I read in one of your books where other women had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I tried it and it helped me very much so that now I can do everything in the house. I have told my friends about your wonderful Vegetable Compound and you have my permission to publish my letter so other women who suffer may learn how to get well.—Mrs. IDA OVERMAN, 902 S. ENDS 150-YEAR FEUD

Trouble Started by Dog Has Just Been Settled.

Egypt—Authorities interfere when two villages engage in bloody battle.

Cairo.—An assize case has ended which is one of the most remarkable held in Egypt for years. It originated in a vendetta, not between families—but between two whole villages, Hamidat and Ashraf, near Keneh, Upper Egypt, northeast of the ruins of Thebes.

One hundred and fifty years ago a dog from the village of Hamidat bit an Ashraf man, who died. A quarrel followed between his relatives and the owner of the Hamidat dog, which developed till all the inhabitants of Ashraf considered that all persons of Hamidat blood were guilty of the death. The hatred of one village for the other became hereditary, and assassination was common between them whenever the conditions of the country favored disorder.

Last spring Ashraf attacked Hamidat in force. A score of Hamidatians were killed, 120 houses were burned and harvests were carried off.

Hamidat remembered the dog and bit back, killing 16 of the assailants. These slayers have just been tried. It accused being brought up and one lawyer briefed for every five persons by the defense. Twenty-one received sentence of 10 years' penal servitude.

It is noteworthy that the vendetta did not include women, who during 150 years had indulged only in verbal warfare.

The "two point side carry." A splendid method of carrying an exhausted swimmer to safety, as demonstrated by the American Red Cross, whose "Water Safety" throughout the United States will, they feel, be a means of saving many persons who otherwise might pay the penalty of carelessness or ignorance in the treacherous waters of our lakes, rivers and oceans. Through every water's port organization the Red Cross seeks to spread the gospel. "Everybody a swimmer—every swimmer a life-saver."

Oils and Their Uses.

Crushing seeds to extract oils has been employed in Japan for centuries. Rape seed oil has long been used for frying fish and lobsters, and is today the principal fat in the Japanese diet. Cottonseed oil was used as a substitute for rapeseed oil and for lighting purposes. The ancient Japanese also understood the extraction of oil.

Educated Mine Rat Opens Dinner Pails of Workers

Workmen at the Richards colliery mines at Mount Carmel, Pa., say an educated rat has been responsible for their missing many good dinners recently. According to the miners, the rat inserts its tail in the ring of a dinner bucket and then takes a big jump. The lid usually comes off. When lunch time comes the men find their boxes empty.

AUNT AND NEPHEW TELL ALL

Say They Poisoned His Parents Year and a Half Ago in Kansas.

Salina, Kas.—Based on statements given him by Miss Stella Hyman and her nephew, Lee Bunch, that Bunch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bunch, died a year and a half ago as a result of poison administered by Miss Hyman, County Attorney Healy prepared to have warrants issued charging the two with murder.

According to the statements of Bunch and his aunt, the alleged conspiracy to kill Mr. and Mrs. Bunch was devised because they refused to sanction the marriage of Miss Hyman and Lee Bunch.

Lee Bunch's statement made to Healy at Lincoln Center, a village near here, said Miss Hyman put the poison in food. She also gave poison to Miss Nancy Bunch, sister of Lee, according to the statement. The sister is a permanent invalid from the effects of the poison, according to physicians. Mrs. Bunch was Miss Hyman's sister.

BIGGER TAXES ON BAD ROADS

Lost Time and Labor on Poor Highways Will More Than Build and Maintain Good Road.

Some folks object to a good roads tax. The American farmer pays greater taxes on bad roads than he does on the construction and maintenance of good roads. The time and labor lost on bad roads will more than pay the tax levy to build and support a good road.

Incompatibility.

FOOD COSTS MORE SINCE 1913

England, Italy and Germany Have Greater Increase Than United States.

Washington.—The family food budget last February was exactly twice the sum expended for the same articles of food in February, 1913, according to department of labor statistics.

During the same period in Great Britain the increase was 130 per cent, while in Italy it was 187 per cent. Germany outranked all countries enumerated, with an increase of 224 per cent.

Increase in prices of clothing in Germany exceeded 1,000 per cent. A man's suit which before the war cost $20, now sells for $223.

IMPROVEMENT OF RAILWAYS.

It may perhaps be exaggerating to say that the railroad situation is at the bottom of all the credit trouble, says the current number of the Bache Review, but at least the tie-up of goods all over the country, to the extent of many millions of dollars in value, has a very potent effect upon the supply of cash and credit.

Relief in the credit situation may come from two sources: first, the crowding out of non-essential loans, and, second, the release of the merchandise congested on railroads.

But the second is the most important, for it must be remembered that upon transportation depends delivery for cash of a large part of these non-essential or speculative holdings in loans. So that the railroads loom up as the most important factor in aiding liquidation of the credit impasse.

It is interesting to note that congestion on the railroads has not decreased the amount of tonnage handled, as compared with last year. For instance, in January, February and March of this year, when the congestion was at its height, tonnage handled was 24.7 percent greater than in the first three months of 1919, and for the month of March this tonnage was 29 per cent. greater. The roads are even ahead of the year 1917 in tonnage for these months.

When the strikes began in April, the situation became even more tangled. Tonnage figures are not out yet for April, but gross earnings of the roads, even for that month, were a little ahead of those for April, 1919. It is encouraging for private ownership that these evidences of progress in managing the complicated railroad situation, exist. Railroad managers have never had such a problem as confronts them now and has confronted them since the government turned operation over to them.

The equipment of the roads was in sorry condition, and shortage of cars and locomotives existed everywhere; there are miles and miles of broken-down carriers. The railroad management has faced the task of repair with great energy, and today, noticeably on the Pennsylvania, the great trainloads of freight going out, with cars in renewed good condition, is encouraging.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in a recent statement before the Interstate Commerce commission, said that notwithstanding every effort that can be made it will probably be six months or a year before it will be possible to get the present equipment of the railroads in as good and serviceable condition as it was at the beginning of Federal control or as it ought to be under existing circumstances. When the government took over the railroads on January 1, 1918, there were owned approximately 2,650,000 freight cars, of which 5.7 per cent were reported in bad order and unfit for service. During the two years and two months of Federal control, the government purchased 100,000 freight cars. This was less than the railroads were in the habit of purchasing each year.

Today, he said, there are, unfit for use and actually out of service 50,000 cars more than at the beginning of Federal control. "Thousands of cars are running today and reported currently as in good order—meaning that they are safe to run—while at the same time they are unfit to perform the service for which they were designed."

These are some of the handicaps under which the railroads, under private control, are laboring. That the management is coping with them strenuously and successfully is shown by the fact that under all the adverse circumstances the roads are moving more freight than they did last year.

Rules Badly Broken.

The postal rules and regulations are being badly broken on rural free delivery No. 3 from Hamilton. The postmaster general issued an order recently that the mail boxes should be used only as a receptacle for the mails and all matter without postage which the carrier finds in the box must be removed by him. In the mail box of Floyd Guthrie on Route No. 3 there is a nest of bluebirds in which there are five little birds. The Guthrie take several daily papers and have daily transaction with the carrier through the box. The mail is put in carefully and removed in the same way so as not to disturb the happiness of the little family. Neither the carrier nor the owner of the box cares to live up to the regulations and dispossess the birds.

Examination for Scholarships.

An examination for scholarships was held at the court house in Coopersburg on Saturday, for which soldiers, sailors, marines, Red Cross nurses and members of the Students Army Training corps were eligible. Nine residents of Otsego, among whom was Melville Johnson of this city, and one resident of Delaware county took the examination. The successful ones each receive $100 for scholarship and $150 for maintenance at any college in the state. The examination was conducted by John B. McManis.

PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION

Two Parties Are All There Are.

Advice more unwise than that which Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is giving the enfranchised women of the country could not be imagined. Not only does she tell them not to join any of the parties she calls "man-made," but she exhorts them not to vote at all or anywhere until, apparently, the existing parties have been replaced by others formed and controlled by women.

But that would be to revert. There are only two parties in this or any other country and they are not made by men or women—they are the inevitable result of the fact that human beings differ in temperament, some of them being disposed to change things and others not to do so.

The women, fortunately, have better advisers among the suffrage leaders than Mrs. Belmont.—[New York Times.]

No Second Ballot Needed.

No second ballot was needed in Eupen and Malmedy, which had a chance to say whether they would be Belgian or German territory. Two hundred protests out of 65,000 population saved the affair from being one of those uninteresting unanimous things, and Belgian they are.—[New York World.]

Burleson Runs True to Form.

Postmaster-General Burleson is true to form in interpreting the pension act in a way different from the heads of other government departments. Mr. Burleson rules that employees must retire at the age of 55, whether they want to or not, when the law provides, or seems to provide, that men may remain in service for certain periods during the first 10 years in which the act is in operation, provided they desire to do so and provided their chiefs certify that they are doing efficient work. Mr. Burleson is at least going his own way, regardless of the coming election and everything else.—[Springfield Republican.]

Raised With Care.

The business man had decided to try an office girl and was interviewing applicants for the job.

He eyed rather suspiciously a fair young thing who wore a somewhat flimsy silk blouse and a lot of gaudy "jewelry."

"I—hope you were carefully brought up," he stammered nervously.

"Oh, yes, thank you," replied the damsel. "I came up in the elevator."—[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

An Alibi Explained.

Asked if he knew the meaning of an alibi a colored man replied: "Yes, sah; it's one of dem times when you prove you was at de lodge when you wasn't to prove you wasn't at de crap game when you was."—[New Haven Register.]

The Disparity Decreases.

The 20,000,000 depositors in national banks in the United States still exceed the number of owners of automobiles, but the disparity is rapidly growing less.—[Albany Journal.]

A REMARKABLE WILL.

Oxford Civil War Veteran Gives Estate to Daughters of Confederacy.

Hector W. Church, a Civil War veteran residing in Oxford, who died July 4 at the Matterson hospital in Norwich, left the bulk of his considerable fortune to the Daughters of the Southern Confederacy. He was a member of the Fifth Heavy Artillery, New York Volunteers and drew a pension. He lived alone, was thrifty and saving and it is believed had accumulated a considerable fortune. So far as is known he had no relatives living.

The will, which has been offered for probate, gives his home in Oxford to Elmer Barile of that place, and the sum of $100 to Edward Morse of that place. The residue of the estate goes to the "Southern society known as the Daughters of the Confederacy." Of this residue $4,000 in second Liberty Loan bonds is to be used toward perpetuating the fame of Jefferson Davis and General Robert E. Lee. John R. Gordon and "Jubie" Early, all leading Confederates. The local opinion of Church is that he was morose and eccentric, and his will confirms the correctness of Oxford judgment.

CHAUFFEURS' EXAMINATION.

Many Owners of Pleasure Cars Taking Out Omnibus Licenses.

Albany, July 11.—With the cost of tires, gasoline and other motor necessities mounting skyward, thousands of automobile owners these days are taking out a chauffeur's license and changing their pleasure parties for omnibus ones, through the required channels. This enables the owner to do a little hacking on the side or pick up a load now and then when opportunity offers. This is particularly true in the vicinity of summer resorts.

In order to accommodate a considerable number of persons desirous of becoming licensed chauffeurs, Secretary of State Hugo has arranged for an examination at Oneonta on July 27 at the High school at 11 o'clock.

NEW "EMPRESS OF CANADA" TO TOUR THE WORLD

ALONG THE STORED Nile, FUJIYAMA, OR SACRED MOUNTAIN.

The big, new "Empress of Canada" is to signalize her service as a Trans-Pacific ship by an around-the-world voyage. This 22,000-ton leviathan is being built especially for the trans-Pacific service. She will be launched at Govan, Scotland, on August 17 and will be completed by March 15, 1921, on which date she will leave Liverpool on her maiden cruise, stopping first at Gibraltar, Monaco, Naples, Port Said and Suez. On this leg of the voyage there will be side trips to Monte Carlo, Nice, Rome, Pompeii and Venice; there will be three days at Cairo, visiting the Sphinx, the Pyramids and the Nile; and the "Empress" will then pass through Suez Canal and the Red Sea to Bombay, India. At Bombay she will give her passengers shore leave to visit Agra, with its famous Taj Mahal, Pearl Mosque and Palace of Akbar, Colombo, Ceylon, Singapore, Batavia on the Island of Java, Manila, Capital of the Philippines, Hongkong, Shanghai, Kobe and Yokohama will also be visited, and the "Empress" will reach San Francisco in June. Here a special train will take her passengers through the Canadian Pacific Rockies on their way eastward to the Atlantic Ocean. The "Empress of Canada" is the largest and finest steamship ever built for service in the Pacific. Her length is 644 feet, her beam is 77 feet and her depth 53 feet. Her turbine engines, driven by oil fuel, will give her a speed of 22 knots per hour. Canada may well be proud of her new "Empress."

CANDIDATE HOOKER HERE

NAME BEING TROD BY THOSE WHO SEEK A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

Successful Business Man and Head of Large Manufacturing Concern at Niagara Falls—Frequently Spends Summers at Unadilla Center—Would Harmonize Progressive Element in Party.

Elton H. Hooker, who is being prominently mentioned and urged as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of New York state by those who want a business administrator of affairs at Albany, was at The Oneonta last night. He addressed the County committee of Broome county at Binghamton Saturday and after spending the night there, returned to the farm at Unadilla Center, formerly owned by his father-in-law, the late D. M. Ferry, where he and Mrs. Hooker spend considerable time each summer, to look over the farm, and arrived in the city later in the evening. He had a conference while here with Frank G. Sherman, chairman of the County committee.

With Mr. Hooker on this trip about the state meeting representative Republicans are J. C. McKnight of New York city, his campaign manager, who has had wide experience in political affairs, and Mrs. Betty Mitchell of Washington county, who has charge of the women's end of his campaign calling upon representative Republican women. They leave early this morning for Elmira where he is scheduled to speak before the Channing County committee this afternoon.

Mr. Hooker is a resident of Rochester and is president of the Hooker Electrochemical company of Niagara Falls, which does the electro process what the electrolysis at Niagara does by a chemical method. The enterprise, which is a well-known to his creative and engineering ability, is the second largest concern of its kind in the world.

He is running his campaign for the nomination of a first New York state wide a business man for governor. He was formerly a civil engineer and was a member of a commission of engineers to inspect the Panama and Nicaragua canals. He had charge of the construction of several large public works projects in Rochester. When Theodore Roosevelt was elected governor, he appointed Mr. Hooker deputy superintendent of public works in charge of the operation of the state canal system. In 1912, he was chosen, at the instance of Roosevelt, as national treasurer of the Progressive party. He organized the electrochemical company of which he is the head in 1903. Colonel Roosevelt selected him to be the head of the gas warfare corps of the division which the Colonel proposed to take to France, but the division was not accepted by the federal administration.

Mr. Hooker believes the state of New York to be one of the largest business enterprises not organized and systematized upon a sound basis, and his friends are urging that with him as a candidate the Republican party can go before the electors of the state with a definite policy of developing the state's resources and thus spreading the state taxes over a larger volume, of increasing and fostering its agricultural production and of co-ordinating the departments of the state government, i. e., the giving to the people of the state a business administration. The wisdom of selecting such a candidate in preference to a lawyer-politician is being urged effectively by many leaders in agricultural and other circles.

Caught in Trolley Track.

Referring to the account of an auto accident which appeared in the Star of Thursday, Scott Youmans, the driver of one of the cars, states in a letter to this paper that he has had eight years experience as driver of cars and does not drive in trolley tracks from choice. In this instance he had just passed a loaded truck and in his endeavor to get back to the right side of the road, ran into the space inside the rails, and he was unable to get out without endangering his car and the lives of those with him. It was while driving along slowly, Mr. Youmans states, and looking for a chance to get out without danger that the accident occurred.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Four Boys Discharged After Severe Admonitions by City Judge.

The four boys who were implicated in the burglary of the booth conducted by D. D. Brown at the ball grounds between the grand stand and the bleachers were apprehended Saturday morning by Officer O'Dell and were taken to the police court and arraigned before Judge Huntington who suspended sentence, giving them an admonitory lecture.

It is understood that a fifth boy recovered a part of the stolen merchandise but did not actively participate in the burglary. None of the lads, as far as is known, had never before committed acts which brought him to the attention of the police. The damage was satisfactorily settled by the parents.

CHAUTAUQUA NEXT WEEK

ADVANCED SALE OF TICKETS AT REDUCED PRICE MAY SOON END.

Only $1.500 Worth of Tickets Will be Sold in Advance — Program One of Exceptional Merit — Will Be Located at Wilber Park.

One week from today the annual Redpath Chautauqua, which many have come to recognize as one of the features of the summer here, will open at Wilber park. While definite figures will not be obtainable until later in the week when all canvassers will report, the indications are that only a small number of tickets remain unsold, many of the guarantors having sold out, and already are asking other guarantors to let them have two or three tickets to care for those whom they have agreed to care for. It would therefore seem wise for all desiring course tickets, which are very cheap for such a series of entertainments, to secure them early this week.

Patrons will find the grounds more accessible this year as a better road has been constructed from Center street to the park and the street department has promised a foot bridge from Spruce street. The grounds will be amply lit and as the drainage is excellent with ample parking facilities motorists will be able to drive close to the entrance to the big tent.

The program for the week is as follows:

July 19—Afternoon, prelude, Mordella Novelty company; lecture, "The Man with One Window;" evening, prelude, Mordella Novelty company; lecture, "How to Live One Hundred Years," Charles E. Barker.

July 20—Morning, Junior Chautauqua; afternoon, lecture, "The New Education," Lucia Ames Mead; evening, play, "Nothing But the Truth."

July 21—Morning, Junior Chautauqua; lecture, "Literature and Art in Daily Life," C. P. Fairfield; afternoon, concert, Knight McGregor company; evening, lecture, "The New World Spirit," Arthur Hunt Chase.

July 22—Morning, Junior Chautauqua; lecture, "The Great Social Problems of the Present Time," Sidney L. Chandler; afternoon, entertainment, Al Baker, Youna, Billy Pryor; evening, light opera, "The Gondoliers," by Gilbert and Sullivan company.

July 23—Morning, Junior Chautauqua; afternoon, lecture, "Order vs. Disorder," Glenn Frank; or lecture, "The Man of Now," Charles S. Medbury; evening, entertainment, Gay Zenola MacLaren.

July 24—Last Day, morning Junior Chautauqua; afternoon and evening, concerts by Victor's band.

Big Time Thursday. When County Legion Convention Takes Place.

All Otsego county posts of the American legion have announced that they will send delegates to the first annual convention, which takes place on Thursday of this week at Cooperstown and Otsego lake. Oneonta post, No. 259, of the legion, expects to have a large percentage of its membership present and is making arrangements to accommodate all former service men, whether members or not, who wish to go. The nominal sum of $1.50 will be charged, this including all the features of the day. A large number of tickets have already been sold, and undoubtedly many more will be disposed of during the early part of this week. The workers who have been selling tickets are requested to report their progress today to F. C. Huntington.

The convention opens in Cooperstown at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, when the business session will be held. At this meeting, delegates to the national convention will be chosen and routine matters of vital interest to all ex-service men discussed.

At noon, all the delegates will board a lake boat and take a sail around the lake, which is noted for its many natural beauties. A stop will be made at Three Mile Point, where a short dinner will be served, with lots of cats for everyone. Following the dinner, there will be an hour of speech-making, with interest attached especially to the address to be made by Father Francis A. Kelly of Troy, the national chaplain of the American legion. Representatives of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and Federal Board for Vocational Training are also expected to be present.

The Oneonta legion post extends a cordial invitation to all former service men to join with it for the day Thursday. The day is bound to be of great value and interest to every ex-soldier and the nominal sum charged is no deterrent to the celebration.

TROLLEY MUST BUILD SIDING

D. E. ROBINSON SUCCEEDS IN ACTION BEFORE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

Plaintiff Now Expects to Proceed with Installation of Big Gasoline Tank at Shady Side Corner on Lower Chestnut Street—Sixty Days in Which to Comply.

On the application of D. E. Robinson the Public Service commission has issued an order directing the Southern New York Power and Railway corporation to "as soon as practicable and in any event within 60 days after the service of this order, construct and establish a suitable switch connection between its line extending from its main line between Oneonta and Mohawk and the tracks of the Delaware and Hudson company in the town of Oneonta, and the premises of the complainant, as described in the accompanying memorandum, said track to be extended to a point to be designated by the complainant and in such manner that tank cars may be so placed that their contents may be conveniently discharged through pipes to be constructed by the complainant."

The order makes provision for the proper protection of cars while being handled and for the removal of current from the overhead wires on the switch except while a tank car is actually being placed. Crews handling tank cars are to be provided with pieces of hurlap or other suitable material with which to smother out any fires which might start from ignition of vapor leakage.

It is required that the complainant shall pay a reasonable compensation for the construction of the switch and side track, i. e., the entire cost of material and labor in the construction of the said track from the clearance point outward to the end of the track and the cost of installing the electrical switch and if required by the respondent, deposit the sum of $500 prior to the commencement of the work as security for the payment of such compensation. Upon the completion of such siding the trolley company is required to handle tank cars for the plaintiff between the D. & H. tracks and the siding and deliver them at tariff rates that may be effective in accordance with law.

While Mr. Robinson had at the time of the hearing expressed a willingness to abandon the project if he could get his money out of the property acquired for the purpose of installing the tank, it is understood now to be his intention to proceed with the project and install his storage tank upon the site mentioned.

TWO ARBITRATORS CHOSEN.

To Settle Differences Between Trolley Company and Employees.

Under the terms of agreement made between the Southern New York Power and Railway corporation and their employees when the men went to work Tuesday, a board of arbitration of the wage question was arranged for, whose decision both parties would respect.

C. A. Graves, general manager, will represent the company, and H. H. Larkey, vice president of the New York State Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America will represent the men. Mr. Larkey and Mr. Graves will get together Wednesday and make an effort to select the third member of the board and hasten the settlement of the question.

A VEXATIOUS PROBLEM

ENFORCEMENT OF GARBAGE ORDINANCE BESET WITH MANY DIFFICULTIES.

Public Health Requires Systematic Gathering and Public Have Alternative of Municipal Collection at Large Outlay.

Firmly resolved that the public health of the city requires that garbage be no longer thrown in the backyard to decay or cast into the ash can, the city board of health is experiencing great difficulty in securing compliance with the ordinance relative to the gathering of garbage, it being reported that only about one household in ten has thus far arranged with the only licensed gatherer to care for their garbage. Others are insisting that they will either burn or bury, but investigation discloses that only a very small number are doing this, and the argument is finding it still cast in among the ashes, to handle which requires him to violate the ordinance and be subject to a fine.

At a meeting of the board held on Friday it was voted to proceed with the prosecution of all cartmen who thus and in nullifying the ordinance. They in turn are inclined to believe that if they refuse they will lose their patrons, and the situation would seem to be one that requires the exercise on the part of the householders of a bit of good sense and loyalty to the public good.

The garbage ordinance was adopted only after careful study of the problem and the present system affords what is believed the best and most economical method. True, it seems a hardship to those who have considerable garbage and who have been selling it or having it carted away without cost to change and pay another for the same service. The single license appeared the best method. One public spirited citizen (the proprietor of the Windsor hotel), who was receiving a good sum annually for his garbage, has announced that he will comply, the authorities having decided that such an ordinance is essential to public health. This would seem the wise and patriotic attitude. Certain it is that enlightened citizens should comply as an example to those whose backyards would otherwise be a menace to the health of all.

Unless public sentiment can be aroused and a more willing and uniform compliance with the regulation given, it is considered probable that another year will see municipal gathering installed at the expense of the taxpayers, it being recognized that some systematic gathering is essential to the public health.

Dr. Shoemaker, Optometrist, will not be in Oneonta this week, as he will be in attendance at the convention of the New York State Optometric society, at Saratoga Springs. He will be here again Wednesday, 21st, to examine eyes and furnish glasses, at Breese block, 153 Main street. 11

Salvation Army Seeks Many Recruits

Prayers for a "deathhouse" convict.

Below—Colonel Alexander M. Damon

At the corner, under the arc light, some music started. A crowd of passersby collected. It was not the throat-tantalizing jazz; it was a soul-stirring hymn.

"Pretty soft," drawled the young man whose shoulders propped up the brick store front of a pool hall. "Some people seem to get by with it, eh? Do a little singsong on a soap-box every night—and call it a day's work. Probably the life of Reilly when you're a buck private in the Salvation Army. No K. P. potato peeling. Pretty soft!"

And so Colonel Alexander M. Damon, field secretary of the Salvation Army, was asked about it. "He is in charge of recruiting Salvationists at the National Headquarters, No. 122 West Fourteenth Street, New York City."

"Say, that's good!" boomed the "Colonel." "A soft job in the Salvation Army? I never heard of it. Listen, my friend:

"In the United States right now the Salvation Army needs 500 men and women. It is the hardest work I know; the pay is the lowest; the hours, why, there aren't any! A Salvation Army officer is on call night and day. Sickens in the elements, starving kids, bare, hungry poor in winter, be-

FLORENCE BRANNING INJURED.

Young Girl Suffering With Concussion of the Brain After Accident.

Florence Branning, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Branning of Leontia, is in a very serious condition here as the result of an accident she suffered last week near her home. She, with another girl of about the same age, was on her way to North Franklin in a one-horse wagon, when the horse suddenly became frightened and gave a bolt. Both girls were thrown out of the wagon with considerable force, with the result that Florence was knocked senseless. Her companion, however, escaped with slight bruises.

As soon as possible following the accident, the Branning girl was brought to the office of Dr. O. C. Tarbox in this city and was given treatment. The physician found that she had struck on her head and was suffering considerably from concussion of the brain. Her head and shoulders were badly bruised.

Considerable doubt has been felt over the outcome of the girl's injuries, for she did not regain consciousness until Saturday, which is a long period for one to remain without nourishment. Dr. Tarbox stated last night that he was not yet certain of the outcome, and fears are expressed for her, so badly did she suffer from concussion. She is now at the home of relatives on Hunt street, this city, where she will remain for the present at least.

Don't forget the dance at Smalley's pavilion, Cooperstown, each Tuesday and Friday, rain or shine. 4t

DEATH OF CHARLES YOUNGMAN.

Well Known Resident of South Side Succumbs to Accidental Injuries.

Charles D. Youngman, town superintendent of highways and one of the best known residents of South Side, died at his residence, the Youngman home, Saturday at about 5:30 p. m., from injuries sustained while at his work. Two weeks ago Friday, while engaged with the tractor, he was thrown with force against the road home. At first he minimized the injury, but it later developed that the spine had been injured and a slow concussion of the spinal cord caused his death. News of his serious condition was little known until his death was announced, causing many expressions of regret.

Born, in Kortright, Dec. 5, 1851, the son of the late John and Electa (Sage) Youngman, he removed when a lad with his parents to the homestead, South Side, where much of his life has been spent and where he managed the farm for many years after the death of his father. For 25 years at least he conducted a milk route in the then village and became well known to the residents. After selling the farm he removed to the village and resided here for about two years, after which he removed to Colliers, where he resided until six years ago, when he returned to Oneonta and since had resided in the old home.

In 1875 he was united in marriage with Christina Cook of Schoharie, who survives him. One daughter, Lillian, an only child, died 24 years ago. He leaves also one sister, Mrs. Walter H. Hall, of New York city, now at her summer home at East Edgecomb, Maine, and it is doubted if word of his demise reaches her in time to permit her attendance at the funeral. One niece, Miss Clara Youngman, is the only other near relative.

The funeral services will be held from the residence on Tuesday at 2 o'clock. His pastor, Rev. Dr. B. M. Johns of the First Methodist church, will officiate and interment will be in the family plot at Glenwood cemetery, the service at the grave being in charge of Centennial lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he was a respected and loyal member.

Mr. Youngman was serving his third or fourth term as town superintendent, in which capacity he was considered very efficient. He was a man capable in many ways and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him. He was a member of the First Methodist church and of the lodge and encampment of Odd Fellows.

MARRIAGES.

Harnden-Lane.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon last, at 2 o'clock, at 54 Maple street, this city, the contracting parties being Samuel S. Harnden of Port Byron and Miss Hazel B. Lane, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton J. Lane, also of Port Byron. Miss Lane has been a resident of Oneonta for a number of years past, attending both the Normal and High schools, and making her home with her aunt, Miss Minnie R. Goodrich, at whose home the wedding took place. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Dr. B. M. Johns of the First Methodist church, in a very impressive manner, the full ring service being used. The bride was tastefully attired in white georgette, carrying a large bouquet of roses. After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served in a very enjoyable manner. The newlyweds left on the afternoon train for an extended visit in and around New York city. On their return they will be at home at Port Byron, where Mr. Harnden was born and has always lived. He is a young man of exemplary habits and holds a responsible position with the Niagara Power company in Syracuse as electrician.

Mr. and Mrs. Harnden were the recipients of many valuable presents, among which were gold coin, silverware, electrical appliances, and two houses and lots in Port Byron, the latter, a gift of the father of the groom. Among out of town guests in attendance at the wedding were J. C. Harnden of Port Byron, Judge Mosher and daughter, Esther, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Peacock of Auburn.

SECRETARIES DANIELS AND BAKER HAVE
CARTRIDGE SILK SUITS; CAN WEAR 'EM FOREVER

Mr. American, are you going to wear a cartridge silk suit next summer? Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Baker are setting the styles. It's the latest thing out. It can't wear out, won't tear, and doesn't show the dirt. Millions of yards of cartridge silk are now being converted into wearing apparel. During the war the new silk was used to contain powder bags for the big guns. Uncle Sam decided to salvage it. Cartridge silk comes 36 to 72 inches wide, and in five grades. In its undyed state it looks something like pongee and is just the thing for summer suits for men and boys, golf suits, and riding habits. Cartridge silk was never used for any but war purposes. The government had on hand more than thirty million yards of it when the Armistice was signed. What to do with it was a question. Major W. J. Grinden, Chairman of the New York District Ordnance Salvage Board, told Irving T. Bush of New York of his plans. Mr. Bush brought in F. A. McLane, a noted silk man, who put a corps of silk chemists at work. The silk was processed into a wonderful fabric, and dyed in a panorama of thirty colors. "Cartridge silk is a wonderful fabric. It is almost indestructible. It keeps its shape beautifully, and washes well," say A. Cavalli, Textile Division, in charge of the Government Silk Fashion Show given in the Bush Terminal Sales Building in New York the other day. The show was attended by T. J. O'Neill, Director of the Division of Textiles, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army; E. C. Morse, Director of Sales, Washington, D. C., and other government officials.

BUILDS GIANT PLANE

Caproni's Latest Machine Will Carry 100 Passengers.

Seaplane is Now Almost Ready in Italy for Its Trial Flights.

New York.—An enormous seaplane to carry 100 persons is the latest project of Gianni Caproni, famed Italian constructor, now in this city.

All except the finishing touches have been put to the machine, and when Caproni returns to his native land in about six weeks he expects to find the plane completed and ready for its experimental flights. These will be made on Lake Maggiore, near Milan, where the airship is being built.

In this venture the Italian inventor has been forced to summon American genius to his aid. For the seaplane will be driven by eight Liberty engines, developing a total of nearly 3,000 horse power.

"This will greatly increase the coefficient of safety," Caproni said to me, "for it will be possible for the plane to fly with only five of the engines going."

Comfortable seats will be provided for passengers in this gigantic flying machine, which, if the plans of its designers are successful, should be able to cross the Atlantic with ease.

Trapped Chicken Hawk.

Mr. Carmel, Va.—A chicken hawk one Saturday later swooped down on a fat hen in W. C. Meyers' yard and proceeded to make a juicy meal off her. Before proceeding far the hawk was frightened away by Mr. Meyers appearing on the scene, who procured two steel traps, placing one on top of the hen and the other nearby. It was not long until the hawk responded by jumping on one of the traps. It was quickly dispatched. The hawk was of what is known as the blue-tail variety and one of the worst of the hawk tribe.

USE ADOBE TO BUILD HOMES

Back to Materials Employed by Spanish Missions.

CHEAP MATERIAL IS SOUGHT

Concerted Effort to Reduce High Cost of Building Small Homes Is Being Made in Many Places—Adobe Scheduled for Picturesque Recrudescence—Cool in Summer and Warm in Winter.

Concerted effort to reduce the high cost of building small homes, so as to place them within reach of families of modest incomes, is being made in many places. Analytical chemists are finding their services in demand testing the various qualities of clay which it is hoped will furnish the durability shown in the adobe houses built by the early Spanish settlers in New Mexico, Arizona and California more than a century since. Many of these buildings still stand as solid, if not more so, than they were when plastered together by their crude designers and constructors, long before the Louisiana territory became an integral part of the United States of America.

In an article published in the Post-Dispatch, prepared by Thomas Crane Young, prominent St. Louis architect, attention was called to his plan to make a series of experiments with the clays in the vicinity of St. Louis, to see if small homes could not be provided with a sun-dried mixture of earth and straw, serving as a substitute for walls of standard brick or hollow tiles. These experiments, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch announces, are still under way and are being watched closely by those who hope for some satisfactory adjustment of the housing problem, which has reached an acute stage in St. Louis and most of the other large cities.

Adobe Bricks the Thing. With building costs persistently advancing and rents keeping pace with this upward trend, a cheap material that would serve the purposes of lumber, brick, stone, tile or concrete would go a very long way in removing an admittedly serious menace. That the adobe is scheduled for a picturesque recrudescence is no longer a matter of speculation, as it has already been taken up on an intensive scale in southern California, where some of the mission buildings constructed of earth still stand as a memorial to the constructive genius of the earliest settlers, who came chiefly from Spain.

Like the Indians and others who happened along first, they decided that homes were essential. Having no architects, builders or skilled mechanics, they took advantage of the materials that nature supplied and molded their walls of mud, with sufficient straw or grass to make the binding force necessary to hold the mass together. Even where there was no timber available, they made supports of the same plastic material after subjecting it to a drying process in the hottest focus of the sun's rays. These pioneers molded the clay into blocks much larger than the standard bricks of the present day and used the soft clay instead of the lime or cement mortar used in modern construction. Simple Process of Building.

While the construction of the adobe house is a slow process, it is yet simple and requires no large working force such as is needed in the building of a home with brick, tiles or lumber. Out in California, where the adobe is coming back strongly, women and girls have turned builders and have reared some attractive-looking bungalows. They follow closely the style of the mission builders and work with a genuine zest once they get their houses under way. In the Huntington Park district, near Los Angeles, young women are giving time and study to their plans and are getting some artistic effects when it comes to the stucco work on the exterior of the walls. When the little homes are completed, it is planned to train vines that will spread all over the structures and add greatly to their picturesque beauty.

Though the Spaniards are credited with the development of the adobe, excavations made in ancient Assyria, Babylon and Egypt have disclosed the fact that the same material, mixed with straw and grass, was generally used for home building by these early races. They followed the same general process of molding the bricks or blocks to a uniform size and then drying them in the sun, before setting them in the walls. Where a stout building was desired a very thick wall was constructed, but most of the houses had but one thickness of the hand-molded forms.

Indians Were Pioneers. The adobe of southern California and Arizona in its crudest state has always been a delight to the artist. Part of the soil, not altogether lovely, but yet harmonious, they present a front of solidity and unobtrusive dignity that deeply impresses one at once. The first adobe built by the Indians, who had little inclination for architectural beautification, were walls of mud heaped up in mass, with a piece of wood or a bunch of grass stuck here and there to give the mixture holding qualities.

The early Spaniards came along and studied the arts and crafts of the Indians with profit. They found many of the adobe houses in good condition and as other materials were not easily obtained, they began improvements on the original plan. They found that most of the soil of the country was well adapted for such uses and they gathered their workers together and proceeded to build their missions. They shaped the pliable clay into bricks 4 by 12 by 16 inches, and ad-ed a liberal measure of grass to impart strength and prevent disintegration. These were piled up in the form of parallelogram, the soft earth, well watered, being placed in the interstices and over the points. As timbers and shingles could not be obtained, they molded substitutes of the same mud composition and installed them in place. After the great earthquake of 1812, the Spaniards abandoned the practice of providing roofs of this material, as it was in that disastrous happening that the top of the mission church of San Juan Capistrano collapsed while the place was filled with frightened members of the colony. Many of the worshippers were killed by the falling blocks.

Cool in Summer, Warm in Winter. The walls of the early houses varied a good deal, some having a thickness of three and four feet, and the floors were made of the same composition. The adobes served the double purpose of keeping the occupants cool in the extremely hot weather and warm when a wintry blast happened along. Where it was available, the early builders, especially the Indians, combined the soil with "tulle," a sort of reed found in the swamps. This added material strength to the walls. Many of these cabins, reared more than a hundred years ago, are still occupied by the descendants of their designers. Among the foothills of Patemare are several villages of the Temecula Indians, whose huts, built of this formula, are still providing home and shelter. Where the mud bricks were placed in the walls without first being dried out thoroughly and mixed with some sort of a binder, they soon succumbed to the weather and disintegrated in time. Thus the original building of the San Gabriel mission was reduced in time to a mere mound. This furnished an object lesson to the builders, who constructed the other mission groups of stancher compositions.

For many years one of the show-places of Santa Barbara was the adobe mansion erected by Don Aguirre, and known as "La Casa de Aguirre."

Palace Built of Clay. Don Aguirre was a rich Spaniard, who did not believe in practicing economy when it came to providing a home for himself and his descendants. He used adobe for his walls because that was the popular material of the time, but he made them as thick as an ordinary fortress; his windows deep as the ports for guns and protected from without with very heavy shutters. The shingles came from Honolulu and the furniture and tapestries from Spain. It contained a store, magazine, warehouse and court and in effect was a village within itself. The residence was 19 large rooms and its drawing room was known to the grandees from San Diego to Monterey for its receptions and parties, at which the Senora Aguirre presided with all the grandeur of a queen. The patio was 40 by 40 feet, the arches of adobe being supported by columns of artistic molding. The porch was fully 15 feet in width, extending the entire length of the court. This famous creation of adobe stood solidly, defying the ravages of time and weather extremes, until about twenty-five years ago, when a cloud-burst in the mountains sent a cataract down on the place, tearing out the supports and starting the disintegration that caused its eventual ruin.

The adobe builders of 1920, while seeking some of the decorative schemes of the Spanish builders, are more intent on providing small homes rather than forts, and are not making their walls as thick as Don Aguirre deemed necessary. Durability and permanency can be insured without resorting to such massive walls, and as lumber and shingles can be secured for the roofs and supports, it is not necessary to invite mishaps such as occurred in the 1812 earthquake.

Has Proved a Success.

The saving in brick and tiles, the principal items in home construction, is a very important factor in the cost of providing the small home, and the workers out in California and other western states will find many others following their example in combating the high cost of building. That the women have found it pleasant employment mixing the mud and molding the blocks to go into the walls is also regarded as a promising augury that there will be many converts to the adobe plan.

Of course, all clays are not as well adapted as those in the far West for adobe walls, but most cities have a variety of soils and tests should be made before the bricks are molded. In the vicinity of St. Louis some of the best brick, terra cotta and fire-clay-products in the country are produced, which means that there is a bountiful supply of material waiting to be taken out of the bosom of Mother Earth for those who wish to experiment and build. The tests now being made by Architect Young and his associates are being awaited with interest by many persons who have lots, but lack the means to provide houses at the present record-breaking prices of materials of common usage. If the earth and its straw or other binder can be hammered and treated into shape to supply the walls, St. Louis will not be long in catching up with the California men and women who are achieving results.

ADVANTAGE TO AGRICULTURE

Time Saved in Hauling Over Improved Roads Really Reduces Cost of Transportation.

One of the great advantages of improved roads to agriculture is the time saved in hauling, which in reality amounts to a reduction in transportation costs.

Bull Has a Morning After.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Man is not the only animal with a thirst. A bull belonging to Frank L. West, county tax assessor, located a still, imbued too freely and went on a spree. Fences were torn down and the still was destroyed, and then the bull was given a chance to meditate.

"Son, when I was a Lad—"

"WHEN we rolled into town on the old stage coach the sight of a tobacco shop was the journey's brightest spot to us lads—because it meant more good 'Old Warrnick.' We smoked it then—before these soft, steam-heated days. We smoke it now—because we've always known the joy of a pure tobacco. And 'Old Warrnick' is pure—best good old blended Burleys without frills or extras."
